Redondo Acts
To Prevent
Kathy Tragedy

Any Redondo Beach property owner who fails to abide by a law which the Redondo city council passed last week to prevent a recurrence of the Kathy Fiscus tragedy, is subject to a possible $1000 fine, imprisonment for six months, or both. The council adopted the emergency ordinance introduced by Councilman F. T. Muegenburg requiring all uncapped or unguarded wells, cisterns, holes in the ground, oil sumps, and excavations to be safeguarded to prevent possible harm to children and adults.

Sump Owner
Faces Trial

The spectacular rescue of two-year-old Larry Stansbury from an oil sump by Ruth Oriant last Sept. 30 was back in the limelight again this week as Los Angeles County prepared to go to court on its first complaint filed under the new sump-hole ordinance.

C. F. Schoepflin, alleged owner of the property where Ruth rescued the toddler, was ordered to appear for trial May 25.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace George W. Saunders of Gardena, Schoepflin pleaded not guilty on charges that he failed to heed orders to properly guard the sump hole at 1747 street and Normandie avenue, where the Stansbury baby nearly perished.

County Surveyor C. E. Arnold disclosed that an aerial survey just completed show there are more than 3000 dumps and sump
